Who writes here?

Hi, we are
Bruno und Dagmar

Live your adventure to your liking

Lucky Ways provides tips and information for the individual traveller who is travelling on his own, at his own pace, as autonomously as possible and away from the mainstream and does not perceive a tension between wilderness and adventure as well as culture and enjoyment as a contradiction .

Our target audience?

Are people like us.

We are very fond of being out in nature, active and sporty. During our hikes and trekking tours it can be a bit adventurous, narrow paths and sometimes even a climbing platform.

During our travels, we are individual travellers. We prefer to take road trips. We like it self-sufficient and off-road. That's why we're on the road with a Landrover Discovery and roof tent.

We are passionate about taking pictures and taking the time to do so along the way. From this point of view, the lighting conditions often determine our planning.

As much as we love the adventure and play guitar somewhere by the campfire at night, we like to let it go well on the other side. We are not young backpackers, but travel on budget. After a strenuous mountain tour or dusty desert ride, what could be better than indulging in wellness, a pleasant ambience and an outstanding meal with an excellent wine?

In other words, we like the people who put a lot of effort into their guests doing well. We love to feel the personal touch of a beautiful location. We like concepts in harmony with nature and with a character who represents lands and people. And we are happy to consume special products and good food from the respective region on site.
